WHEN A ZEPPELIN FALLS AND BURNS.
All that remained of a Zeppelin brought down during the raid on England in September. So fierce was the heat that even the aluminium frame was consumed.

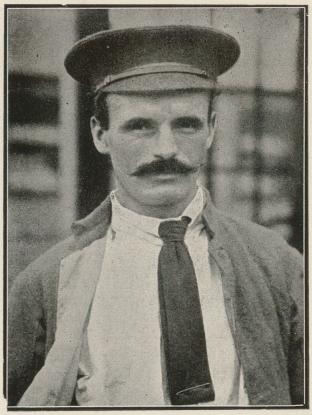
PRIVATE WILLIAM JACKSON, V.C.,

Of the Australian Infantry. Although his arm was blown off by a shell while making a second trip into "No Man's Land" to rescue wounded, he returned to the trenches for assistance, and again went out.



PRIVATE MARTIN O'MEARA, V.C.,

Of the Australian Infantry. During four days of heavy fighting he repeatedly went out and brought in wounded officers and men from "No Man's Land" under intense artillery and machine gun fire.

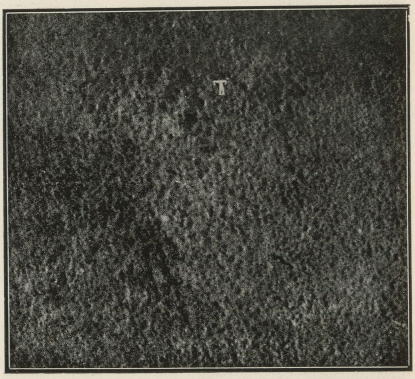
TWO AUSTRALIAN V.C.'S.

Among the defences of Verdun that has been bombarded until scarcely a vestige remains is the Thiaumont Wor k. This picture (reproduced from official photographs in "L'Illustration") shows the "work," nearly circular, as it appeared from an aeroplane at 7000ft. on March 31, when it had been heavily bombarded by the Germans.



The same view on August 12, taken from 4500ft. Nothing is distinguishable but shell holes, the whole face of the country being obliterated. The "position of the work" is to the left of the letter T.
